216 Freshmen Entertained During Week, Unspoiled by Spell of Discouraging Rain

VOL. XXXVI MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE, MIDDLEBURY, VT., SEPTEMBER, 21 1938 No. 1

Freshmen Welcomed To College

Program for 1942 Class Initiates College's 139th Year

Under cloudy skies and continual rain the 1938 Freshmen week program, devoted to the class of 1942, inaugrated the one hundred and thirty-ninth year of Middlebury College.

Preceded by the annual qualifying examinination in English literature conducted during the afternoon, the week's social activities began Monday evening with an informal assembly for the freshman class at the College playhouse. This was followed by a general reception for freshmen and faculty in Egbert Starr library at which time the entering class met and chatted with their advisers.

Tuesday morning Acting Dean Patterson opened activities with a short discussion with the entering men at the Playhouse. This was followed throughout the day by freshmen registration and lectures on the use of the library. Due to inclement weather, an informal supper and get-to-gether was substituted for the previously planned outdoor supper and outing, the same being held in Forest Hall recreation room. Tuesday evening the freshmen women enjoyed an informal reception at Pres. Moody's home.

Wednesday morning the entering women listened to a talk by Dean Ross. Hygiene lectures for the men given by Dr. Stewart Ross '20 of Rutland at the college playhouse and additional library lectures occupied the remainder of the morning.

Library lectures and a brief talk by John Golembeske '39, president of the Interfraternity council, filled the afternoon program. This evening the men will be entertained at an informal reception at Pres. Moody's home.

Tomorrow morning College officially opens at 9:30 with Pres. Moody's chapel address, at which time the freshmen men will don their frosh caps, the same to be worn until Christmas vacation. Throughout the remainder of the day library lectures will continue. The informal smoker, "Middlebury Night", in the gymnasium for the entire men's college, with Judge Albert D. Leahy '28 as the principal speaker, will close tomorrow's program.

Friday morning at 8:00 classes will begin for the entire college. Saturday evening, the Women's college will hold their annual get-to-gether in the gymnasium, a reception comparable to the men's "Middlebury Night", this event closing the 1938 Freshmen week.

The primary purpose of Freshman week is to acclimate and orient the entering class and to introduce them to customs and hospitality of Middlebury. Through the medium of the planed program this purpose is accomplished.

Panther Eleven To Engage Williams

First Game Will Test Both Teams In Williamstown Encounter This Saturday

Middlebury Beckmen will journey to Williamstown Mass. on Saturday to avenge last year's 7-0 defeat at the hands of a strong Purple team.

Coach Beck, who has been in the game long enough to know that you can not prophesy victory or defeat any more than you can foresee New England weather, refused to foretell the Blue and White chances in the opening game.

Coach Charley Caldwell down at Williams, on the other hand, seemed to feel optimistic in spite of the manager's report that thirteen lettermen graduated and only three or four seniors are on the present squad.

Middlebury's line up will show many new names. Anderson and Cridland, last year's giant tackles, and Winslow the regular end were lost by graduation. Golembeske, center last year, will probably be unable to play because of an injury received in practice. Captain Kirk is the only regular of last year who will be in the forward wall. In the backfield, Chalmers, Boehm, Guarnaccia and Liljenstein were all lost by graduation.

Last year's freshman team, which had only an average season, will offer some material to fight it out for positions with men from the two upper classes. Scoop Mahoney will undoubtedly be in the backfield in the

Language Schools At Middlebury Possess International Reputation

In the first rank of modern language schools in the United States stands Middlebury's five summer language centers. The first language school in the country was the one devoted to German, a pioneer enterprise in the summer study of that language.

Further extending the summer language program new schools have recently been opened in addition to the original English, French, Spanish, Italian and German institutions. The annual Writers' conference is now held at Bread Loaf inn where over sixty authors and would-be litterati study for a two-week period under recognised authorities in the field of short story, essay, drama, novel or poetry.

The latest addition is the Music center, established this summer on the campus, largely through the efforts of Mme. Andre Morize of the French school. Here students of music are privileged to study in connection with three outstanding language schools in the near vicinity. Especially helpful are the facilities for training in phonetics, "speech laboratories" and correction by the use of recording apparatus.

The new Music center is not, however, the first school of its kind in Middlebury. A Music school was started in 1913 by Minnie Hayden, but was discontinued over ten years ago.

The Bread Loaf writers' conference is rapidly acquiring national reputation. Directed by Theodore Morrison, the conference numbers among its faculty several noted names. Bernard DeVoto, the Saturday Review of Literature; Hershell Bricknell; Fletcher Pratt; John W. Gasstner; Gorham Munson; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Everitt; and Wallace Stegner. Mr. Stegner, recent winner in the Little, Brown novelette contest, replaced Merritt Hulburd on the staff this summer. Mr. Hulburd is associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

The conference is organized on informal and flexible lines. Lectures on the techniques of the main forms of

HEALTH CERTIFICATES REQUIRED OF ALL MEN BEFORE REGISTRATION

Closer check on the health of the men's college is the order for the year 1938-39.

Beginning this fall men are now required to undergo a rigid physical examination prior to the opening of college. The purpose of requiring this certificate of fitness, according to Prof. Arthur M. Brown, director of athletics, is to encourage the student to check periodically on his health, and also to advise the college on the fitness of candidates for competitive athletics, both intercollegiate and intramural.

Dr. Patterson Will Be Dean In '38-'39

Six Professors Will Enjoy Sabbatical Leave During Current Scholastic Year

Outstanding in the list of facutly appointments is that of Dr. Charles D. Howell as professor in biology in place of Dr. Raymond L. Barney, who died this summer. Dr. John Patterson of the economics department of New York university will serve as acting dean of men during the year's leave of absence of Dean Burt L. Hazeltine.

Dr. Rex N. Webster will teach botany this year.

Prof. Walter T. Bogart, who has been promoted from instructor in political science to assistant professor, will be acting head of his department this year. Prof. Ellsworth B. Cornwall, the department head, will have a year's leave of absence.

Jorges Guillen, celebrated Spanish lecturer and poet, of Seville, Spain, will act as assistant in Spanish during the first semester. Prof. Juan R. Centeno will be on leave during this period.

Wyman W. Parker, who has been enjoying a year's study and travel in Europe, will be the new college librarian in the place of Miss Laila McNeil. Associate professor John G. Bowker will take his full sabbatical leave this year. Prof. Pearley J. Davison and Professor Centeno will be on leave the first semester and Prof. Phelps N. Swett the second semester.

Henry W. Bedford has been promoted to assistant professor of music and fine arts and John G. Bowker to associate professor of mathematics.

Dr. Robert Davis who has spent the summer in Spain will again fill the place of Professor Davison as assistant professor of history during the first semester. Other appointments announced in the spring were:

Charles F. Wiston, lecturer in history; Lafayette B. Hedge, instructor in mathematics; Charles H. Kaiser, assistant professor of philosophy; and Justin V. Emerson, instructor in English.

Dr. R. L. Barney Dies During July

Leading Biology Professor Was Active on Campus For Last Fifteen Years

Death of Prof. Raymond L. Barney in Boston last July 9 following an operation takes one of the best liked and most respected men from the ranks of Middlebury professors. Since 1924, when he receved his appointment here, Dr. Barney has been professor of biology.

Only forty-six at his death, Prof. Barney had received his bachelor's degree from Rhode Island State in 1915 and his master's from Brown a year later. After winning his doctor's degree in 1924, he came to the staff at Middlebury as professor in the biology department. From that time on he was active in affairs of the college, being many times chosen by undergraduates as the one faculty member giving most to the college's intellectual life.

At many periods Dr. Barney was connected with government fisheries laboratories. Professorship at Middlebury forced curtailment of these activities, ranging from Connecticut to Louisiana to Iowa, but he still kept in contact with the field with many papers on various forms of marine life. During the sabbatical leave of Dean of men Burt A. Hazeltine in 1936, Dr. Barney performed in the capacity of acting Dean.

His wife and two children, one a recent honors graduate, survive him.

Opening Of 139th Year Tomorrow

Pres. Paul D. Moody Will Address College in Mead Chapel

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 the 139th year of Middlebury College will be officially opened by Pres. Paul D. Moody in the first daily chapel.

A total of 223 new students are entered this year. The class of 1942 in the men's college numbers 128, with 6 students in advanced standing. Eighty-eight freshman women are matriculating, with one student in advanced standing in the women's college.

Although enrollment figures have not finally been made available, estimates indicate a considerable increase over a year ago, with all classroom and dormitory facilities taxed to the limit. Last year a total of 788 students were enrolled, with the largest freshman class entered in the history of the college. One hundred fifty-four men matriculated in the class of 1941, while 117 new women enrolled in the entering class in the women's college.

This year existing equipment could care for only 128 freshman men and 86 women, with seven persons in advanced standing. Should the 566 members of this year's three upper classes all return, a total of 789 students will be enrolled.

As to the geographical distribution of this year's entering class, a situation corresponding to that found in total enrollment figures of last year is found. New York state leads in the number of representatives in the plebe ranks, closely followed by Massachusetts. Vermont takes third place and fourth position is occupied by the state of New Jersey.

Students from the above named four states comprise over two thirds of the freshman enrollment, while the remainder of the class represents Connecticut, Ohio, Deleware, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Maine, Maryland, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia.

In the exercises tomorrow morning certain customs will be observed. Among these is that of the singing of the same hymn at the opening of each college year. Ancient of Days is the hymn thus favored. Upperclass men and women are seated in the large central section, sophomores at the side and rear, and the majority of the freshmen being cared for in the side balconies, with the overflow seated on the ground floor.

CAMPUS STRONG STUDENT PUBLICATION AFTER THIRTY-THREE YEARS OF SERVICE

(In the past few years several histories of the CAMPUS have been printed. These have in many cases been grossly inaccurate. In order to give a faithful report, the following account has been checked with original CAMPUS files.)

THE MIDDLEBURY CAMPUS, now serving the 800 students of Middlebury College, was born in 1905. Its predecessor, The Undergraduate, had given nearly uninterrupted service since 1830, but had been discontinued in 1902.

Commencing under faculty and student supervision, the new CAMPUS followed closely along the lines of the Undergraduate, which had been a combination news-literary endeavor. The first editors were Prof. C. B. Wright and David C. Caldwell '05. Containing essays, poetry, fraternity news, alumni notes, editorials, with advertisements of town businesses and Middlebury College the magazine was well balanced for its type, and was issued four times a year.

The first big milestone of the CAMPUS is reached early in 1913, when Charles Smiddy '13 causes a minor revolution in Middlebury by making the CAMPUS a real newspaper. The former booklet size is given up and a large, four-page sheet with columns is adopted, smaller than the present CAMPUS, and with labels instead of headlines. The CAMPUS now appeared at frequent, though irregular intervals throughout the college year.

During the next few years and into the World War the college was entering a period of expansion and building, with Hepburn and Mead chapel being constructed and an increasing enrollment. Under John C. E. Voss '14 and Leonard Monahan '15 the CAMPUS was ably conducted, with a tendency toward more pictures and real headlines. With James J. Floyd '16 a falling-off student interest is seen in the CAMPUS. It was evident that the CAMPUS needed a change and must either improve greatly or fall behind its standards of the past few years.

The CAMPUS finally passed to Richard H. Buffum '18, the former "undergraduate editor". A complete reorganization of the staff soon followed. The CAMPUS was in very difficults straits and Buffum was under the responsibility of regaining con-

"TO THE CLASS OF 1942 . . . "

Addresses to freshmen are too often misused to scatter benevolent platitudes and trite phrases. Suppose instead that we pass over these and talk facts. First we welcome you, sincerely welcome you, and express the wish that this year, the 139th of the college, will demonstrate the most successful freshman class in Middlebury's history.

For three days you, as freshmen, have been entertained at the college's expense. This was done for a good purpose; that you might come to know each other and learn something of Middlebury and its traditions. Tomorrow morning at chapel you will discover that there are a few hundred others in the college; these others to be known as upperclassmen.

What is important about this intelligence is your reaction to it. In the last two and three years freshmen at Middlebury have had more freedom than ever before. Strict Freshman Rules became broad freshman customs. Cap-tipping was forgotten and freshmen might smoke in public and use walks and entrances heretofore forbidden. The outcome has been a change in the character of the student body, in many ways good, in some bad. There are still many upperclassmen who feel that the students coming in since rules were relaxed are immature, impudent, and as "Rah!-Rah!-Centerton-High!" as the day they left prep school. You alone can refute this charge for your class.

On the other hand, there is no need to be servile to upperclassmen. They are of all types. Some are in earnest and wish to take full advantage of college while others as concerns their attitude, have gained nothing from two or three years of higher education. This is particularly true of studies, and all things considered, education is still a major part of college life. Others unfortunately, among upperclassmen, have not a clear record in extracurricular activities. ar too ooften bound by fraternity politics, positions of responsibility or honor are handed out to fraternity yes-men of distinctly mediocre ability.

Do not think that your class will effect a revolution. No class is that important. Middlebury has many noble traditions which have endured for nearly a century and a half—too long to be discarded for 1942. Furthermore we suggest, suggestion being as far as we can go with freshmen, that you write the following in your list of fatherly warnings:

Conduct yourselves as college men, not prep school applicants.

Be civil but not servile to upperclassmen.

Pay strict attention to your studies during this, your hardest year. The members of 1941 who forgot to study are not here this year to warn you.

Try for some extracurricular activity, and do so with the resolve to act honestly so it may be said of Middlebury that any man may attain honor by his own efforts without fraternal or other influential connections.

(The following is reprinted from The Middlebury College News Letter for September, courtesy of W. Storrs Lee, editor.)

There was no need to call moments of silence on July 9 when word came to Middlebury that Prof. Raymond L. Barney had died in Boston early that morning after an operation. College and town alike were both stunned to silence. Nor is any eulogy necessary here. Tributes are on the lips of every Middlebury graduate and undergraduate of the past fourteen years.

The CAMPUS extends its sincere sympathy to the family of Walter Weston, superintendent of grounds. Mr. Weston's endeavors to beautify Middlebury's campus will long be remembered by her grateful alumni and undergraduates.

CAMPUS IN 34TH YEAR

fidence for a bankrupt student paper from both the students and advitisers. Added to other difficulties, the printers were forced to refuse further publication unless a bill of $500 for past printing were settled. Going before the students Buffum appealed for voluntary contributions and the sum was raised. The CAMPUS was now to go through a virtual rejuvenation. So enthusiastic was the student body for a representative student newspaper that Buffum's next move, to make the CAMPUS a weekly was met by the students' circulating a petition to have the subscription price entered on the term bill, so as to assure support of a newspaper for the undergraduates. The staff in return guaranteed a minimum of thirty issues a year, and this num of thirty issues a year, and this number has never been decreased.

K. A. Brautigan '22 effected a third revolution by enlargng the paper to five columns, with a bigger page size. The added cost was borne by enterprising advertising at a higher rate.

One of the most important and most difficult changes in the CAMPUS was effected by W. Storrs Lee '28. This was the addition of the insert, or pages 3 and 4 in the regular six-page issue. A new constitution was adopted for the CAMPUS which was not changed for several years.

During the next few years, under Frank A. DeWitt, Jr. '29, Frank A. Chromec '30, and Richard A. Amerman '31, Reamer Kline '32 and Anthony G. L. Brackett '33, the appearance of the paper differs little from the present. James S. Tyler '34 adopted a light Cheltenham face for headline types, known as "dress," which was followed by his successor, Otto W. Prochazka, Jr. '35. Jack Steele '36 put the CAMPUS into its present Century dress and under his attention to detail and accuracy the publication was much advanced. Ralph W. Pickard '37 continued his predecessors high standards, while Robert J. M. Matteson '38 introduced sweeping changes in layout.

The present board has enlarged the size of the CAMPUS. The administration has exerted less control over the paper than formerly. Women have been better represented in the editorial voice of the paper although only one woman is eligible for a senior position on the staff.

Entering its thirty-fourth year, the CAMPUS aims to serve the students and alumni of Middlebury College with the same high standards of former years.

WILLIAMS SCHEDULED

opening game. Captain Kirk will be the team's mainstay at left end. Berry, House, Krauszer, Schragle and Tupka are out for right end. Out for tackle are, Murray and Kinsey, reserve men for the last two years, as well as Boardman, King, Mahar, and Profy. Mayo was a likely candidate for the backfield until his injury. The guard positions seem to be well fortified with Jaques, Vartuli, Thomas, Bartlett and Skinner. About thirty-five men reported for early football training.

WE WELCOME YOU to Middlebury . . . and wish you a pleasant and profitable Year.

LANGUAGE SESSIONS

literature, class discussions of manuwriting, on contemporary American scripts, individual interviews for criticism of manuscript and advice on literary or publishing programs were the main features of the session.

A series of evening lectures was also scheduled. A truly outstanding list of speakers was included. Among these were Robert Frost, Alice Duer Miller, Archibald MacLeish, and Louis Untermeyer. Any two lectures were open to persons not officially enrolled in the conference.

The registration at the summer schools this past season was high, a total of 674 being reported. All classroom dormitory facilities were taxed to the limit.

An unusually wide geographical distribution was indicated in the enrollment statistics. Forty-two states and nine foreign countries or territories were represented. New York had the largest delegation, followed by Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania.

Standing Order with millions

. . . and with more smokers every day who find in Chesterfield's refreshing mildness and better taste just what they want in a cigarette.

It takes good things to make a good product. That's why we use the best ingredients a cigarette can have —mild ripe tobaccos and pure cigarette paper — to make Chesterfield the cigarette that smokers say is milder and better-tasting.
